

Hogweed is a NYC-based tribute band, comprised of Steve Messana, Mike DeRosa, Chris Valentine, Nate Fredette and John Perez. They perform Genesis music from 1970 thru 1978, although their song list is heavily influenced by Gabriel-led material. In the classic style of early Genesis live performances, Hogweed uses costumes, stage make-up and assorted props, creating a multi-media event.

They have been entertaining audiences in the New York Metro area since July 2002, playing at clubs like Le Bar Bat, Downtime, Village Underground, Lizard Lounge and Sgt. Peppers.

"Fans of The Musical Box and other Genesis tribute acts will want to check these guys out, and if you live in the NY area be on the lookout for them live." - Sea of Tranquility, Web Source for Progressive Rock

Saw the Genesis tribute band Hogweed in NYC and they were great! They sounded so good! They opened the show with "Dance on a Volcano" and then went on to play "The Lamb Lies Down on Broadway", an edited version of "The Musical Box", "Anyway", "Lilywhite Liliith" "Cinema Show" and ended the show with "The Return of the Giant Hogweed". It's so good to finally have a Genesis tribute band here to stay in the NYC area!

I saw Hogweed live at the Village Underground and they were rocking. It was a great show and I can't wait for the next one. I also enjoyed talking to the band members after the show. They are a great group of guys.
